BATTLE ALONG MEUSE

French Batteries of Artillery

Germans Continue Desperate
Fighting Near Arras.

Along the remainder of the 360 mile battle front stretching from the North Sea to Switzerland, where the defenders and invaders have been deeply entrenched for 37 days, the only activity noted is that in the region of the river Meuse where heavy fighting goes on principally in the vicinity of Camp Des Romsains.

A huge conflict is in progress along the Vistula river in Russian Poland. Dispatches from Petrograd declare that fierce fighting to the west of Warsaw has taken place in which the Germans were driven back toward their main positions on a line from Skierwice, near Lodz to Sandomir, on the Galician border.

The Russian official reports say that the efforts of the Austrians to cross the river San have been repulsed.

In the Pacific ocean Japan has occupied "for military purposes" the German island in the archipelagoes of Marshall, Mariann, and Caroline. These groups lie from 1000 to 1700 miles east of the Philippines and include the America island of Guam. The occupation of Yap, one of the Caroline Islands, gives Japan control of the German cable station which connects China with the Malay archipelago.

Turkish naval engagement has been fought in the Black Sea.

INDIAN TROOPS WITH BRITISH DISTINGUISH SELVES IN BATTLE

Seventy thousand troops from India are now taking part in the terrific battle in the north of France. They are proving themselves good fighters, and are fearless in battle.

lowing official communication from Berlin dated October 20, was received in Amsterdam.

"The Germans advancing along the coast at Ostend, met hostile forces at the Yser river, near Nieupont, where fighting has been going on since last Sunday."

Leave Antwerp.

London, October 20.—In a dispatch from Rotterdam the correspondent of the Evening News declares that the German marines are leaving Antwerp to join the German fleet and the German ships at Kiel are being extensively provisioned.

Today's Acute Points.

London, Oct. 20.—The plunging German attack on the allies' line near the Belgian coast, between Nieupont and Dixmunde, similar tactics by the Allies in France between Arras and Roeux, the latest progress is claimed, a
held by the Germans, and stubborn fighting in the vicinity of St. Mihiel, where for days the allies have been trying to drive the Germans from their southernmost lodgements, were the acute points today in the sprawling battle area of France and Belgium.

The communications issued in behalf of the allies last night enable Britain to visualize for the first time in ten days the approximate battle line from the Belgian frontier to the sea, and shows how the allies during the days of censorship were throwing themselves westward to meet the inevitable German offensive which followed the taking of Ostend.

Belgians Again Active.

The fighting is centering now only a few miles southwest of that city and the Belgian army, heretofore reported as having repulsed the Germans on the banks of the river Yser, is again in the thick of the fighting being credited as bending back the German line as far as Roulers, Belgium, thirteen miles west of Courtrai, which point they are holding, according to the latest report available when this dispatch was written.

A dispatch stated today "north of France" says that the allies have retaken Ostend, but this is not confirmed and is at variance with the German contention that they have reached the neighborhood of Dunkirk, whose inhabitants as well as those of Boulogne are in a state of panic.
The Belgians are holding Roulers it seems incredible that the Germans have advanced so far, as that would mean a complete bending back of the allies' left which results from the coast west of Ostend.

Mud Hinders Artillery.

Torrential rains have been falling recently near the scene of the coast fighting, making the flat country sea of mud, and this with the network of canals makes the movement of German guns extremely difficult. The Germans, however, are still bringing up reinforcements.

The Russian Union of Abstinence which devotes its energy to combatting on alcoholism addressed to Emperor Nicholas a solicitation that he forbid forever the sale of spirituous liquors in Russia. His Majesty replied in a telegram sent in the name of the Grand Duke Constantine, in which he said:

I thank you. I long ago decided to interdict for all time, in Russia, the sale of alcoholic drinks by the govern- ment.

"The London press is hailing the German offensive effort to sweep through Belgium to the north France coast towns as a failure. If this be true that the progress from Ostend has been slower than the usually impetuous German right, but it seems premature that they have failed until something more decisive has occurred between Roulers and the coast.

News from the east shows no notable change in the battle line there.
The Russians contend that the Germans are still held on the Vistula and San rivers.

Fires Show Battle Line.
"Burning houses indicate the line of fighting in northwestern Belgium," telegraphs the Flushing correspondent of the Evening News under date of Monday.

"On Sunday seventeen trains of forty cars each brought wounded men to Brussels," the correspondent continued. "The northern columns of the Germans have been increased from reinforcements brought at night from Bruges, where there are now but few Germans left."

Enlist Sharpshooters.

French recruiting officers are spending considerable sums of money to bring about the enlistment of the fisher population residing on the French and Belgian coast. These men are to be organized as sharpshooters.

JAPANESE HOLDING IMPORTANT ISLANDS IN PACIFIC OCEAN

Occupation of Islands in Marshal and Caroline Groups Reported at Tokio Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokio, Oct. 20.—The navy department has announced the occupation for military purposes of the strategically important islands in the Marshal (or Ladron) east Caroline and West Caroline archipelago.

Submarine Destroyed.

It was officially announced in Tokio today that the German torpedo boat which escaped from Tsing Tau, the coast of darkness, has been found aground and destroyed by the Japanese at a point sixty miles south of Kiao Chow.

Confirmed at Pekin.

Pekin, Oct. 20.—A dispatch received here from Tsing Tau, the German fortified position in Kiao Chow, says that the Japanese cruiser Takachiho was sunk in Kiao Chow harbor the night of Oct. 17 by the German torpedo boat S-90.

Previous announcement has been made of the occupation of islands in the Marshal and Caroline groups.

Many Survived.

Sasebo, Japan, Oct. 20.—According to information reaching here today only three of the 234 members of the crew of the Japanese cruiser Takachiho, which was sunk by a mine on Kiao Chow bay on the night of Oct.
17, survived the disaster. The body of Captain Ito was discovered.

The mast of the steamer is visible above the water. It is believed that she ventured too close to the harbor.

RUSSIA TO ABANDON ITS LIQUOR TRADE

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 20.—The Mexican consulate here today received a report from Mexico City stating that General Villa created a panic among the delegates to the convention of military chiefs in Aguas Calientes today by moving an army of 18,000 men into position, where he can envelop the city and imprison the entire corference.

Villa's army is reported to be within an hour's march of Aguas Calientes.
To support them, there are Carrancas troops at Montevideo and Saltillo, but it would take several days to get them to Aguas Calientes.

Reach Texas.

Eagle Pass, Tex., Oct. 20.—The constitutionalist chief, reached the Mexican border today. The constitutionalist, in an address here today before the American Bar Association, said that he had been received by General Carranza.

In a speech delivered as president of the American Bar Association, Mr. Taft also said that the progressive party was departing from "the terracus nostrum" of the recall of judicial decisions because it apparently had become a burden to the party.

In speaking of the European war,
Mr. Taft said that President Wilson should have the warmest approval and sincerest co-operation in his efforts to maintain the strict neutrality of this country.

"We are the principal nation," he continued, "and I might say almost the only nation, of the Christian world
 not so related to the struggle that both sides may really regard us
 as disinterested friends.

It is our highest duty, and the president makes plain his appreciation of this, not to sacrifice and destroy this great leverage for successful mediation. We have the opportunity of ill-advised and premature judgments upon the merits. We must hold our tongues to be useful to mankind.

Concerning this country's obligations under its treaties Mr. Taft said:

"And now that we are discussing compliance with treaties and the effect of treaties of arbitration and of peace upon the chances of war, is it a good time for us to clear our own house and to put ourselves in a position where we can fulfill the letter every treaty we have entered into? We have made many treaties of friendship and peace—indeed, treaties with all the world—in which we have assured to alien subjects or citizens of the other party to the treaty, resident within our borders, due process of law in protection of life, liberty and property. But we now withhold, however, from the same authority that makes the treaty, the power to fulfill its obligations.

"Australia is the principal nation," he continued, "and I might say almost the only nation, of the Christian world
 not so related to the struggle that
 both sides may really regard us
 as disinterested friends.

Mr. Taft said that there were indications that there had been a distinct failing off in support of the proposals for recall of judges and of judicial decisions. These proposals, he said, were incorporated in the platform of the progressive party, whose leader felt called upon to declare that they were the rock upon which it was founded.

ENGINEER'S IDEAS ON ILLUMINATION

MUNICIPAL EFFICIENCY ENGINEER TELLS COMMERCIAL CLUB OF ADVANCED IDEAS IN LIGHT. ING.

LIKES MONOUNITE PLAN

Expert Favors Standard With Single Light and Propounds Points for Belief.

Hans E. Seidl, public service engineer, Chicago, an expert in his line and a man who bears an international reputation along this particular phase of municipal advance, outlined yesterday to the members of the city commission, guests of the Janesville Commercial Club at its weekly luncheon and dinner, the most approved, modern and up to date system of illumination for cities.

Mr. Seidl is an advocate of the mono-unit of single light, means of illumination and among these were some discussions among the members as to the advisability of the installation of the single light standards. He will prepare plans for the light committee of the organization showing the most adequate means of lighting Janesville's business district and also incorporate therein ideas most efficient for economy and beautification of the downtown streets.

"Some cities," said Mr. Seidl, "make failure of so-called improvement. Street illumination is one municipal feature where there have been many mistakes."

There are two things, he pointed out, that entered into the success of some lighting systems: artistic standards must be simple, a single straight form, together with being distinct and individual. The second must be as low as possible cost with the highest illumination efficiency possible. The speaker was of the opinion that the merits of this system were many.

Speaking of the features of the Janesville system the engineer said it was a gross failure. Numerous blinking electric signs together with other bright markers and the unsightly telephone poles which obstructed a clean, clear view at night, were the causes. The main feature of a city successfully illuminated is the long vista of unobstructed lights to be seen when one goes out on the thoroughfare.

Lights placed high on the poles were robbed of their efficiency. Similar loss is experienced with the private advertising signs, but these need not necessarily be eliminated.

Ways and means to clear the ground must be found if Janesville installs a system and wants it to be a success. Mr. Seidl said he noted the multitude of poles in the business section during a walk of the morning. He said a great many were unnecessary. With the poles out a far better appearance would be immediately seen.

Speaking of the five clustered lights, a kind used at present—Mr. Seidl said they were largely used throughout the country during the past year and a half, but that they, as a whole, were not satisfactory. Their upkeeps for each unit was considerable and they needed five times as much care as the single unit light.

While the monolight was 100 percent perfect the five cluster light was not. Sometimes a globe was broken—they cost about two fifty—and sometimes there was trouble with the interior bulbs. This he held did not look good. The globes which hang downward in the summer fill with bugs and mosquitoes and flying dirt and sand and this too was a point against their further adoption.

If Janesville decided on the five cluster installation Mr. Seidl knew of a western city wishing to get rid of this particular style for the installation of a newer idea in standards, which would gladly give the city opportunity to take the old standards off their hands.

He laid much stress on the necessity of uniformity and cited as examples cities of the east, as Gary, Indiana, Cleveland and Akron, Ohio, Philadelphia, New York, Chicago and Detroit where the new lighting systems were in vogue and had been worked to a high degree of efficiency both as to adequacy in beautification as to adequacy in illumination.

He told of the three systems used in Chicago, the boulevard, resident and downtown types. Along Sheridan Road the standards are of a granite-concrete mixture. The members of the club and of the commission asked many questions regarding these, but according to the engineer's idea they would be a misfit for the downtown section of Janesville.

The standards in question are about twenty feet high with a square base of perhaps ten or twelve inches. The column tapers to the top and is crowned with a bronze grill work which holds the single light in position. As a whole the standard bears the earmarks of modern mission craftsmanship. These particular types are made by the Chicago Park Commission, which also holds the patents on the idea. However, they put their superintendent in charge of the manufacture of these to be hired by other cities. The posts weigh about 200 pounds each and are masterpieces of their line. It takes an expert to decide whether or not they are cut from solid granite so well has the process of casting been attained.

A thirty-two inch globe tops the standard. Too much sky was lit up, however, and the road and street forseen said the speaker.

Turning again to the five unit cluster the speaker said that these systems had one advantage over the mono-unit idea, although if need be the latter could be placed on an equal footing with the other. This advantage is the fact of the five lights can be turned out at certain hour, say ten or eleven o'clock, and at time after the crowds have left the streets.

Today's Edgerton News

Edgerton, Oct. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. V. N. Green went to Rockford today to attend the funeral of the latter's aunt.

Relatives here received the sad news of the sudden death of Will Nichols of Dunkirk, which occurred early this morning. The immediate cause of his death was heart failure.

Mrs. M. Lintvedt, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. A. Olson at Edgerton, returned home yesterday. Mrs. J. J. Wileman and daughter Esther and Mrs. Wentworth spent today in Janesville.

The lights now used locally in the standard globes are of 300 watts for five clusters, 60 watts per lamp.

J. J. Mohr, manager of the Janesville Electric Contracting Company, was also a guest of the club and entered into the discussion. He was formerly with the Wausau Street Railways Company of Wausau and this company furnished the power for the modern illumination system which was installed in the northern city several years ago. Wausau has the five unit system.

Monarch Malleable Range Demonstration all this week. TALK TO LOWELL.

It was thought best by Mr. Seidl and a matter of adequacy that the light radius of each unit or group of units should cut the radius described by the circumference of the standard next. This he said, depended upon the surroundings.

Installed complete the single unit post would cost in the neighborhood of $20, and providing the city uses this system a saving of perhaps a little more than fifteen dollars will be realized on each standard as the ones now in use cost over $45 at the time of complete installation.

As Mr. Seidl has been retained by Milwaukee firm who deal and manufacture in electric supplies, this company gave authority for him to submit a proposition to the commission and the Commercial Club to stand free of all obligations, any standard complete which would be selected. The matter was put to vote and carried unanimously. The new post will be erected and equipped shortly.

City Attorney Dougherty moved that the city of Janesville adopt some means of systematic illumination. The motion carried.

Mr. Mohr said that he was prepared to bring to Janesville a man that could give a stereopticon lecture and show the lighting modes from Noah to the present. Recently, in a strain of humor, H. L. McNamara remarked that you wanted something ten years ahead of the present.

It was explained by Mr. Mohr that in all probability the high school auditorium could be secured for the lecture and demonstration. It was decided to leave the matter to the club's light committee, although the idea of a massmeeting of citizens for the purpose of lighting education seemed to be favored by all present.

Mr. Seidl asked for plans of the city with the streets to be improved marked. He also said it was necessary that the poles be also represented on the drawings. He contemplates submitting either three or four sets of plans for the benefit of the commissioners and the Commercial Club light committee.

REV. HOFFMEISTER CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF DRAMATIC CLUB

Elaborate Opening Banquet and Business Meeting Was Held Last Evening.—Other New Officers.

At the regular meeting of the Janesville Dramatic Society, held last evening at the high school auditorium, following an elaborate banquet held in the high school reception hall, Rev. Elmer O. Hoffmeister was elected the new president of the organization for the coming year. The vote was unanimous. He will take charge on next Monday night, succeeding Frank Hayes, who was the first president of the club.

Miss Isabelle MacLean was chosen as first vice-president and Harold Jones as second vice-president. Martin Kennedy will succeed Miss Hazel Willey as secretary of the club, while Miss Mabel Greenway succeeds herself as treasurer. The executive committee and business managers will be chosen at a later date.

Following the election of officers the meeting was opened to a general discussion based on what study course the club would desire to pursue this winter. The study of the American Drama met with favor among the majority, and will be the subject to be taken up this year. The club closed its meeting last spring with the study of Forbes-Robertson, well known actor, playing in Chicago.

The five cluster lights, a kind used at present—Mr. Seidl said they were largely used throughout the country during the past year and a half, but that they, as a whole, were not satisfactory. REV. JOHN P. HAIRE WIDEST READ MAN DIES IN CHICAGO

Former Resident of Janesville and Leader in Literary Circles Thirty Years Ago.

Dead.

The Rev. John P. Haire, said to have been the most widely read man in Chicago and who thirty years ago conducted a private school in Janesville, died yesterday at the home of his son-in-law, S. O. Lennsen, 4049 Lake Park Avenue. He was 83 years of age. Until a week ago he had been in excellent health.

He was born in Elizabeth, Ohio, and graduated from Williams College as a classmate of President Garfield.

He became ordained and came from Ripon College, where he enjoyed a professorship, to this city and occupied several times the pulpit of the Congregational church and also conducted the private school or classical academy which is remembered by many Janesville people. Later he went to Chicago, where he associated himself with book publishers.

He was a lifelong friend of the Rev. Jenkins Lloyd Jones.

Thirty-five years of his life, with an average of thirty hours a week, had been spent in the preparation of a great library index. This contained references to 500,000 different topics, gleaned from a constant study of the more important works of literature. The only other publication of this nature said to be at all comparable with the Rev. Haire's work is Poole's Index, which deals only with periodicals.

Both Rev. Haire and his wife took a prominent part in literary work of Janesville and the southern portion of Wisconsin. Mrs. Haire was the organizer of the Woman's History Club, still in existence and which enjoys the distinction of being one of the pioneer organizations of this nature in the state. It is the oldest of the city.

Rev. Haire was the founder of the Round Table, a literary organization which flourished here many years ago, in the late seventies and early eighties.

PLAN DISCUSSIONS OF TRADE QUESTION

Secretary McDowell of Commercial Club Receives Interesting Communication.

Secretary McDowell of the Commercial Club has received an interesting communication from the New Orleans Association of Commerce, relative to a coming gathering at Memphis to discuss the United States manufacturers entering the South American field of commerce. It should be of interest to Janesville manufacturers as it opens a new field for their product. The following is the communication.

The conference on foreign trade called to meet in Memphis Nov. 19th and 20th, and to which manufacturers, exporters, importers, banking, steamship, railroad and insurance interests of the Mississippi Valley, Central West and Gulf States have been invited, promises in one respect to prove more permanently useful than the annual general meeting for the promotion of a scientific need. It is no secret that large interests in New Orleans and Chicago are preparing, on their own account to follow the example of the Germans and British, and establish a great American banking corporation, one of the purposes of which will be to place branch banks in Latin American countries wherever and whenever conditions of trade and financial safety warrant their establishment. For years the European banks have handled all American foreign bills of exchange as between the United States and Latin America, and have taken a huge toll amounting to millions of American dollars.

In the shape of commissions which under other circumstances would be made by American banks, German banks have shown particular interest in nationalizing German overseas trade. The shareholders of German foreign trade banks are composed of manufacturers, exporters, importers, steamship, railroad and insurance interests, all of which are financially interested in the development of foreign trade. Such banks make loans to foreign governments and municipalities for public improvements and thus become a part of the business life of these countries, and that trade follows finance is shown by the enormous and rapid development of Germany's foreign trade. War has brought this trade to a standstill. There are no German ships on the seas and therefore the Latin American particularly must look for the United States to consume their raw material and to supply them with manufactured articles.

The meeting in Memphis will be a selected one. Numbers are not desired, but experience and ability are for the problems to be discussed are of vital importance to the entire United States. It is felt, however, that the Gulf Gateway is the natural outlet for this trade, just as the North Atlantic is for Europe and the Pacific coast for the Orient. Therefore the territory is confined to that which has a direct and British interest in the development of foreign trade via the Southern Gulf ports which are many hundred miles nearer to the Panama Canal than the North Atlantic and where the railroad export and import rates for the Central Western territory are far less. It is for this reason the north and south railroads are so actively interested in the promotion of the new and big movement.

PROMOTERS REFUSING TO GIVE GUARANTEES

Percentage Basis Urges by Match-makers in Scheduling Bouts. Notes of the Squared Arena.

(By Strikes.)

With the excitement of the world series over the fans recovering from the surprise of the outcome—boxing comes once more into the limelight sharing with football honors in the sporting world. The biggest event in the packed ring since the retirement of Freddie Welsh and Freddie White for a ten round Milwaukee fight on November ninth.

Eight promoters, especially in Wisconsin are beginning to realize the foolishness of giving big guarantees even fabulous amounts to high classistic artists. As a result of listening to the hue and cry for big money by the boxers, the promoters have been whipsawed out of every chance of making any profit and in a matter of a few days are breaking even. The spirit of "set the money" on the part of the mitt wielders has caused several clubs in this state to quit and in Janesville it is a question if the Bower City club will hold exhibitions this winter.

A policy of paying the boxers what they earn is urged. A percentage on the house apparently is the only fair way for both the boxer and the promoter to be both are entitled to compensation for their efforts. The usual demand of the boxer is away beyond his power to draw and even the lesser lights get a bee in their bonnet that they can demand a fancy price to exhibit their wares. For example—Ritchie Mitchell, the Milwaukee feather wanted three hundred dollars as a guarantee to box Young Scotty, the home town rival, for ten pounds before the Bower City club. For a club the size of this city this price is out of the question for it leaves no chance to schedule any exhibition bouts that would be worthy of attention.

Mitchell was offered a percent of the house, which would afford him a commensurate reward for his efforts but the Milwaukee pride is it is said to have frankly admitted that he did not have ambitions to meet Scotty. The club here lost money on the last exhibition which was directly due to the poor bout exhibited between Jack McMahon and Kelly, two cumbersome heavyweights. The result of this bout disgusted the fans and although the next bout proved to be of championship calibre—there was a poor attendance. In Milwaukee the promoters of the Ritchie-White scrap, the small form and the Cream City promoters are saying "nothing doing" when guarantees are mentioned.

The matchmakers say if a boxer is high class as to demand a big guarantee why should he be afraid to take a chance on a percent of the house and prove that he is a drawing card. Below is also backward in taking a slow for it is certain that the Line club has not made a fortune of their contest and have postponed several times their second show this season. The new movement promises to be the best thing for the game and if the exponents reach a business agreement, boxing should have a banner season. With continued acquiescence on the part of promoters will prevent outbidding of matchmakers and place boxing on a better business basis.

Tom Andrews, Milwaukee promoter, also has signed Freddie Welsh, the elusive British lightweight champion of the world and Charlie White, America's best 133 pounder. Considerable wrangling over the weight question prevented and price halted efforts to sign the pair until last week but now White has his chance. Theistic followers expect to duplicate his victory over the title holder as he did over Ritchie, when the crown was held by an American boxer. Charlie Ritchie, the former champ is still champion of America and providing he can make the lightweight mark in weight, is entitled to a bout with the winner. Ritchie is anxious to wipe out the black mark given him by both men and after resting in a hunting trip is ready for the resin and gloves again.

Gunbar Smith further demonstrated he is in the "woman" class as a white bone when Battling Levinsky, the New York mulishness eater who is really a middleweight basted the Gunner in ten rounds. Levinsky gave Smith a lot of weight but still pounded him badly. Reporters of the bout by New York papers state that Smith was wild as well as slow and cumbersome. The Gunner, who is now Levinsky and the New York boxer, had hit the "bone" so clearly that a decision in his favor was only just. With Smith in the "white bone" class with Morris the Americans will have to look to Willard.

Kid Williams, the latest in the bantam champions is declared to be joining the featherweight division with the view of annexing Kilbane's title. Williams' has been a sturdy brawler on the type of "Terry" McGovern with his slugging ability and fierce attack. There is a prospect that Kilbane and Williams will be matched. The bout between Kilbane and Ritchie Mitchell has not progressed as the Milwaukee feather has not yet announced any inclinations to meet the champ even if he did disover his k.o. wallop on Chavez.

The matchmakers say if a boxer is high class as to demand a big guarantee why should he be afraid to take a chance on a percent of the house and prove that he is a drawing card.

Jack Dillon, the claimant of the middleweight title with his manager and seconds were arrested in St. Louis last week for stalling against Knockout Brown. Jack of aggression caused police interference and Indianapolis fighter was "pinched". An example carrying out of this policy whenever necessary should aid in putting the game more on the level.

Packey McFarland has given publicity to the fact that he will enter the ring and contest for title honors. Whether Packey could retain his old time brilliancy and speed is doubtful but there are many fans who wish the Chicago stockyard bather the best of luck. McFarland once liked Welsh in Milwaukee and Packey nurses the idea that he could beat the Britisher again.

Two boxing bouts have been arranged that will bring together championship contenders in the light and middleweight division. Ritchie and Johnnie Dundee will box twenty rounds on October 23 and a week later Jimmy Clabby and George Chip will clash. Both bouts will be staged in San Francisco where the game is booming.

Sport Snap Shots

Little Joe Gans, the colored lightweight master, never heard of Dick Slosson or Art Root, but he was Gans' wonderful left that really made Stossi and Root the promising boys they are today. Porter Root, Art's older brother, and boxer himself, is Mat Kinkel's trainer-in-chief. Everything about him is pretty thorough knowledge of the game, all is observed. Also he has the faculty of imparting his knowledge to others. It was while attending a movie show in Pittsburgh three winters ago that Root saw the films of the 21-round bout between Gans and Battling Vreeland, a race horse which died of the effects of poisoning in Toledo several days ago. Lived long enough to set up a mark which has not been duplicated for many years on the running turf. During the recent meeting at Woodbine, Vreeland, won two six-furlong races on the afternoon. Then the track was deep and the horse, which was owned by J. J. McMillan, had been taken to the railway station for shipment to the Havre de Grace meeting. Owing to irregularities in the shipping it was taken back to its stable

Nelson. Gans popped his left to the Battler's face and body all during the fight. He worked it from every angle and position possible. Porter studied the pictures until the strain on his eyes forced him into the street. When he came home he taught the left to his brothers and Stossi and other members of the stable. Now Art Root and Dick Stossi own as good a left as any young boxer in the game. Joe Choyinski, the veteran heavyweight, saw Stossi and Root when the two last boxed at Cincinnati and confided to an old ringmaster that the two boys worked their lefts more like Gans than any other boxer he had ever seen. It was then that Porter Root made known the secret of the lad's success.

Team Get Out for Drill Yesterday in Preparation for Edgerton Straggle Next Saturday.

The Freeport defeat of last Saturday has not discouraged the high school cohorts in the least. It has instead encouraged them to such an extent that twenty members of the squad donned uniforms yesterday afternoon and trotted out to Grant park, where preparation for the Edgerton tussle scheduled for next Saturday was commenced.

No injuries were sustained by any of the players in the game at Freeport, consequently all the men are expected to be in the pink of condition for the battle with the Tobacco City men.

The game will be played at the Park Association grounds on the soil where the shipping Boilmakers Public practice has Friday.

Coach Curtis believes his team has learned a lesson—that they must get started in the first quarter, rather than waiting for two periods, only to be beaten. This has occurred in both games in which the locals have been the losers.

I SEE YOU KNOW HOW TO HANDLE THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW.

YOU BET I DO JUDGE — ALL THE BOYS ON THE LINE ARE TAKING SMALLER CHEWS AND GETTING MORE SATISFACTION.

THE better the news the faster it travels—"Right-Cut", the Real Tobacco Chew is taking hold like sixty.

Seems like every man who tries it wants to pass the good word along.

It's full-bodied, sappy tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit out few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is "The Real Tobacco Chew". That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shod so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut".

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

COMMON SENSE.

What is needed at the coming election is the exercise of good common sense by the voters. Horse sense if you choose to call it. One of the chief opportunities to exercise it is relative to the proposed amendments. They are all along the line of increasing taxation.

The Madison Democrat sums up the whole situation when it asks most pertinently: "Mr. Taxpayer, candidly now, have you gotten any advantage from the rising taxes of the last fifteen years?"

Anything whatever?

Take this question home to heart seriously, thoughtfully, and answer at the polls in November—particularly with reference to the proposed constitutional amendments. As you know, we have been burdened by what may be regarded as "over-tax and excess," and it all has led nowhere! We the people have obtained nothing in return. The net result is nothing but jobs! jobs! not for you, not for me, but for the other fellows who are hiding these jobs and who today constitute the vast army of office holders which of course is boasting enthusiastically for so-called progressive legislation and the Wisconsin idea. What we have in the way of progressive legislation is largely excessive legislation. It has gotten us nowhere—us common taxpayers. The army of inspectors at the capitol represents nothing so much as waste. Our commissions largely are of the same class. They have not produced results.

Have they?

If so, where?

Ask yourself that question—where? Where are you better? Where is your condition improved? What have the commissions done for you or your children? Of what value have their everlasting inspections been to you?

Is your factory, your office, your shop, your warehouse, your hotel in a safer, more sanitary or better condition?

Are railway rates less than they were before the fraudulent reform came on?

Is education strengthened or are accidents fewer? Has the death rate materially decreased? Is there less sickness?

In short, what have you received in return for the trebling and quadrupling taxes that you now are paying?

If you have received nothing in return, then why continue longer this wantonly wasteful Wisconsin idea, these numerous commissions, these multiplying jobs useful chiefly to their occupants, these ceaseless, exasperating inspections of factories, shops, offices, hotels, stores—everything?

Why not go in now for actual reform—for a sweeping away of this costly, annoying, superfluous part of our government and get back to sound, democratic principles of old?

That is the thought which you, Mr. Taxpayer, should carry to the polls next month.

On top of all the nonsensical government under which we are suffering, and for which we have paid stupidly in taxes these last fifteen years, now come ten proposed constitutional amendments—faddy, wasteful, needless! What do we want, Mr. Taxpayer, with more of this same sort of thing which has been costing us so dearly? These amendments are all along the same evil, mischievous line.

For instance, there is the initiative, referendum and recall. Mr. Taxpayer, do you need them? Do you not realize that they are the silliest sort of fads sprung by the same lot of dreaming theorists who have given us our onerous taxation, our myriad jobs, our exasperating inspections? You know, Mr. Taxpayer, that our methods of government in all the years past in Wisconsin have been sound and safe and economical. Why deviate from them at the behest of bogus reformers?

Why fuss with the initiation of laws by the people instead of in the legislature where such initiation belongs, and where it has belonged since the organization of our government?

Why refer back to the people for confirmation or rejection, measures which the legislature has passed? If laws are not satisfactory to us, the way to get rid of them is in the next legislature. That has been the method through all time in this state, and you are asked, Mr. Taxpayer, in all sincerity, has not the method worked well?

Then why change it, why confuse and complicate our system of government? Why introduce an innovation that is utterly needless simply because it is urged by impractical faddists with nothing better to do?

And the recall? Mr. Taxpayer, you can now "recall" any erring public official at the next election. Is that not soon enough? But if he is particularly obnoxious, has been guilty of malfeasance in office, you can "recall" him now by appeal to the courts. Many a bad officer has been kicked out quickly by judicial process. We do not need the recall. We have today every reasonable remedy to protect us from derelict public officials.

The recall? Just a fool fad! Nothing else.

And so on regarding the other proposed amendments.

Mr. Taxpayer, why should Wisconsin go into the insurance business and run the risk of imposing gigantic obligations upon all of us—possibly require us to take out insurance whether we want to or not?

Why should a legislator's pay be increased $700? Is there any hope that we should obtain better legislation by reason of this increase? Mr. Taxpayer, if this amendment is adopted it means a little more than $82,000 of your money and mine spent every two years upon legislators. There is nothing in it for us or for the state. As has well been said, the pay for legislators should not be increased but the period of legislation should be decreased. There is not now, and there never has been, any valid reason why the Wisconsin legislature should be in session six months. That time may well be cut squarely in two, thus saving to our taxpayers a large amount of money consumed in the processes of legislation and also a lot of legislation that never should be enacted anyway. The longer the session, the more laws—the more tax-eating laws!

And so one might go on with a discussion of all the other amendments. They are not needed. Mr. Taxpayer. They are not of a class that can do you any good, and they all should be voted down? No mistake may be made by so voting and it is the only safe thing to do.

Remember your disastrous experience these past fifteen years, Mr. Taxpayer, in the light of your tax receipts, and begin at the November election to stamp out the fads that have cost you so dearly, and also the others which the faddists now would engraft upon the constitution.

A FUTILE EFFORT.

President Wilson is out with a campaign letter, addressed to Congressman Underwood, and through him given to the public, in which he urges the voters to support democratic candidates for congress, using the argument that the welfare of the nation demands that the party be continued in control.

From the Wilson viewpoint this argument may be convincing, but to the country at large it is as full of holes as a skinflint. There are too many idle men, and too many empty dinner pails in evidence just now, to talk about public welfare, and the men who are suffering from loss of employment are beginning to realize that an incompetent national administration is responsible for these conditions.

Not a panic but simply stagnancy brought about by unwise and burdensome legislation, which has demoralized many industries, and driven capital into retirement. Fourteen of the seventy American beet sugar factories were abandoned this year, and the balance of them will be out of business before the president's office expires. That means wiping out a home industry with nothing gained. Who is responsible? The democratic party.

Other industries have suffered and some of them to the point of extinction, and now the people are asked to contribute $100,000,000 to pay for democratic extravagance and incompetency.

Mr. Wilson enjoys a certain amount of sentimental popularity because of his war policy, and this may save his scalp in 1916. Much depends on circumstances, but his party is doomed to defeat and the coming November elections will record the first passage in the national administration.

The republican party was defeated in 1912, not because of Mr. Wilson's popularity, but because of Rooseveltism, masquerading under the progressive banner. The success of his party in many states, was due to the same cause. The voice of the big bull-moosers is not so potent as it was two years ago, and many of his followers have already forsaken the fold.

Mr. Wilson's popularity, however, is not because of his war policy, and this may save his scalp in 1916. Much depends on circumstances, but his party is doomed to defeat and the coming November elections will record the first passage in the national administration.

Mr. Wilson enjoys a certain amount of sentimental popularity because of his war policy, and this may save his scalp in 1916. Much depends on circumstances, but his party is doomed to defeat and the coming November elections will record the first passage in the national administration.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ON ADVICE.

"Had I been present at the creation I would have given some useful hints for the better ordering of the universe." "If they would only take my advice," began the Author-man's wife.

"Which they won't," interposed Cynic. "People seldom do," she admitted. "But remember, he who will not take advice will have to buy dear repentance."

"That," said Traveler-man, "is what Lamb would call a 'cowardly and living proverb.'

"Why?" asked the Author-man's wife.

"Because," said the Traveler-man, "the inference is that we dare not refuse advice which is cowardly, and that, if we take advice, we will not have to buy dear repentance, which, very frequently, is lying. I should say that it is as likely that he who takes advice will buy dear repentance."

"There are as many kinds of advice as there are people. Some advice is good, other bad. I think that most of the advice our friends and acquaintances offer us is indifferent. It usually represents either prejudice, fear or fears, or a hastily formed opinion based on little or no knowledge.

"Let me suppose that you advise me not to buy a certain house. I should determine first whether you know anything about the house. Then I must decide whether your opinion is worth anything. For your advice is simply your opinion which you recommend that I take. So set aside your advice until I have received my own advice on you and on your opinion."

"Of course," said the Author-man's wife, "advice depends upon who gives it. Anybody knows that."

"Exactly," said the Cynic, who had taken a book from the library shelves. "So let us see what the proverb-makers—themselves men of all ages, advice, Here's one. 'If you wish good advice consult an old man.' Here's another. 'Though old and wise, be still advised.' In other words, you pay your money and you take your choice. The Germans say, 'Take advice from the lowly'; the Danish, 'Ask advice of your equals'; the Arabians, 'Divise Whisper'; the French say, 'No advice like a father's'; but the Spanish say, 'Whispered advice is not worth a pea'.

The French say, 'No advice like a father's'; but the Spanish say, 'Whispered advice is not worth a pea'.

"And," added the Cynic, "not to feel resentful when the person who has asked our advice—or received it unasked, does not follow it. As the French say, 'Advisers are not the payers.'

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are three girls of fifteen and would like your advice on the following questions:

(1) Is it proper to go to high school entertainments with our boy friends? (2) Is it improper for a girl to have anything to do with a boy whom she has never been introduced to but she is well acquainted with his parents?

(3) Should a boy sit with his girl around a girl?

(4) Is it right for a boy and girl to exchange rings?

E. M. & M. (1) Many mothers will not allow girls of their age to go to the institute and only when there seems to be no other way of getting to and from the entertainment would it be advisable.

(2) If you parents are acquainted and you are thrown with the young man it would be foolish to stand on ceremony.

(3) Never permit any such familiarity, my dear girl. It cheapens you, I heard a young man refer to a respectable (?) girl who allowed spooning, as "one of the common girls." It does make a girl common. She must even lose her own self-respect if she allows boys to treat her in this way.

(4) No. Never wear a boy's ring unless you are engaged.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married seventeen years. Had a son fifteen years old and a daughter five years old. I was happy the first years of my married life. Now my husband drinks and stays out

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Green Tomato Mince Meat—One pound green tomatoes, four pounds white sugar, two pounds seedless raisins, one cup suet chopped, five two-tablespoons salt, two cups boiled cider or vinegar, two lemons (juice and grated rind), two teaspoons each of clove, cinnamon and allspice, one grated nutmeg. Chop tomatoes fine, drain two or three hours or overnight, seal twice with boiling water (drain off the time, allow to get cold). Put in the tomatoes, sugar, raisins, suet and salt. Let boil until tender, add cider, lemon and spices. Can hot or pack down in jars. This is better than that made with meat.

For Successful Home Baking

the right choice of baking powder is essential—a baking powder that, in addition to raising the dough in just the proper manner, adds nutritive value to the food. When you use

Rumford

THE WHOLESOME
BAKING POWDER

everything you bake will be more wholesome, more delicate in texture, more delicious in taste than ever before. Rumford always produces the same perfect results.

Mailed Free—The new Rumford Home Recipe Book, including Fireless and Casserole Cookery. RUMFORD COMPANY, Providence, R. I.

THE TABLE.
Apple Balls—Peel large red apples and with a potato scoop, cut out balls and drop them into water with a little vinegar to keep them white. Prepare a mixture of grapefruit pulp, pineapple, banana and orange, and put it into glasses, add a few of the little water balls to each, pour over a little boiled syrup (chilled); flavor to taste.

Apple Pudding (baked)—Stir to a cream two tablespoons butter and half cup sugar (granulated). Stir into this yolks of four eggs well beaten, the juice and grated rind of one lemon, and half a dozen round green tart apples grated. Now stir in the four beaten whites of the eggs. Season with cinnamon or nutmeg. Bake. To be eaten warm with cream.

Straw Cakes—A very delightful butter cake that is equally good for breakfast, luncheon or tea. Mix one-half cup milk, three well-beaten eggs, one and one-half pint flour and a little salt. Have plenty of melted fat (rendered butter preferred) in moderately small skillet. Take a small finger and pour about three tablespoons melted fat into it; hold finger over the small opening, then let batter run through, starting center of bowl. Guide it around and around, about four times, then cross one or two times, so it will hold together. When done on under side turn over and bake until puffed and light. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and eat hot.

Cornmeal Muffins—One-half cup up and down the irregular amateurish columns.

"I see," he remarked, "all your allowance is gone but fifty cents, and there is a bill before pay day."

"I did try to be saving, Herbert," and the little face looked very miserable.

"Never mind, dear, you are only beginning. We shall have to eat out the month without meat and eggs. Let's see," he reflected, "seven days for two people on 50c. What have you on stock?" Come, let us take an inventory," he said, kindly.

"Don't be so secretive," he asked with the first touch of impatience in his voice. "We can work this thing out in time if you will play fair and be open and above board. It will take time to learn to save, as money has always seemed to fall like manna from heaven, for you. No wonder you have trouble in learning to do without and spend economically."

"Hazel, there are plenty of beans. Boston baked beans are good and take the place of meat. Have you any pork in the house?"

She took her head dejectedly. "We will put down 10c worth of pork, then there are two hamines, three if necessary," said the boy, managing easily. "Now what else have we?"

A package of macaroni and a can of tomatoes; this good for dinner number three and number four can be macaroni and cheese."

"We have no cheese," said Hazel.

"Ten cents' worth" of cheese, she whispered.

The Wife's Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Mazel Morrison had undertaken to manage more carefully when her husband told her that her millinery bills were crippling him. She agreed with him that a housekeeper allowance with a fixed sum per month for her personal expenses ought to solve the problem.

A few weeks later the new student of domestic economy was looking very nervous and perturbed. After supper was cleared away she brought her housekeeping book and pencil

"You like escalloped tomatoes and baked potatoes and baked rice and cheese."

"Good! Have a baked dessert, baked apples for instance," he added, "everything can be cooked in the oven and save gas. Keeping the gas bill down will help a great deal in the expenses."

"You might have corn souffle, but that will take three eggs, and we are nearly out of eggs."

"Have noodles and paprica tomato sauce," he suggested, "with escalloped potatoes."

"I have flour and shortening and can make hot biscuits and waffles for a change," said she, brightening, "but we have no fruit but apples and the canned fruit and I'm afraid the biscuits will not last," she added with a start.

"How is the personal allowance coming on?" he resumed as they went back to the parlor.

There was no answer.

"I hope you have not been spending beyond the limit there."

"I got a fall coat and had it charged in my name," she finally said, "I will pay for it out of my allowance."

"Did you not know the bill would come to me just the same?" he asked gravely. "A husband is responsible for his wife's debts, you know. The law recognizes that they are one, one in interest, one in responsibility."

"I thought I could pay for it a few dollars a month and you would never know," she said, a note of despair in her voice.

"Don't be so secretive," he said with the first touch of impatience in his voice. "We can work this thing out in time if you will play fair and be open and above board. It will take time to learn to save, as money has always seemed to fall like manna from heaven, for you. No wonder you have trouble in learning to do without and spend economically."

"Go in! Go in, as I told you!" he cried. "Stay in, alive or dead! Stay in! I tell you to come out! Stay! I can't do any more! You must do it now!"

"Then this may be truly the end," thought Marta, "if the assault fails."

And silently she prayed that it would fail; while the flashes lighted Westerling's set features, imploring success.

In the Browns' headquarters, as in the Grays', telegraph instruments were silent after the preparations were over. Here, also, officers walked restlessly, glancing at their watches. They, too, were glad that the mist continued. It meant no wind. When the telegraph did speak it was with another message from some aerostatic officer saying, "Still favorable," which was taken at once to Lanstron, who was with the staff chiefs around the big table. They nodded at the news and smiled to one another; and some who had been pacing sat down, and others rose to begin pacing afresh.

"We could have emplaced two lines of automatons, one above the other!" exclaimed the chief of artillery.

"But that would have given too much of a climb for the infantry to go in delayed the rush," said Lanstron.

"If they should stick—if we couldn't drive them back!" exclaimed the vice-chief of staff.

"I don't think they will!" said Lanstron.

To the others he seemed as cool as ever, even when his maimed hand was twitching in his pocket. But now, suddenly, his eyes starting as at a horror, he trembled passionately, his head dropping forward, as if he would collapse.

"Oh, the murder of it—the murder!" he breathed.

"But they brought it on! Not for theirs, but for ours!" said the vice-chief of staff, laying his hand on Lanstron's shoulder.

"And we sit here while they go in!" Lanstron added. "There's a kind of injustice about that which I can't get over. Not one of us here has been under fire!"

Even the minute of the attack they knew; and just before midnight they were standing at the window looking out into the night, while the vice-chief held his watch in hand. In the hush the faint sound of a dirigible's propeller high up in the heavens, muffled by the fog, was drowned by the Gray guns opening fire.

Before the mine exploded, by the light of the shell bursts breaking their vast prisms from central spheres of flame for miles, with the quick sequence of moving-picture flicker, Fracasse's men could see one another's faces, spectral and stiff and pasty white, with teeth gleaming where jaws had dropped, some eyes half closed by the blinding flashes and some opened wide as if the lids were paralyzed.

Faces and faces! A sea of faces stretching away down the slope—faces in a trance.

Up over the breastworks, over rocks and splintered timbers, Peterkin and the judge's son and their comrades clambered. When they moved they were as a myriad-legged creature, brain numbed, without any sensation except that of rapid going over a fall. Those in front could not falter, being pushed on by the pressure of those in the rear. For a few steps they were under no fire. The scream of their own shells breaking in infernal pandemonium in front seemed to be a power as irresistible as the rear of the wedge in driving them on.

Then sounds more hideous than the flight of projectiles broke about them with the abruptness of lightnings held in the hollow of the Almighty's hand and suddenly released. The Browns' guns had opened fire. Explosions were even swifter in sequence than the flashes that revealed the stark faces.

Dust and stones and flying fragments of flesh filled the air. Men went down another, perhaps four or five in a row, terrific crashes. Sections of the ram were blown to pieces by the burst of a shrapnel shoulder high; other sections were lifted heavenward by a shell burst in the earth.

Peterkin fell with a piece of jagged steel embedded in his brain. He had gone from the quick to the dead so swiftly that he never knew that his charm had failed. The same explosion got Fracasse, sword in hand, and another buried him where he lay. The banker's son went a little farther; the banker's son still farther. Men who were alive hardly realized life, so mixed were life and death. Infernal imagination goes faint; its wildest similes grow feeble and banal before such a consummation of hell.

But the tide keeps on; the torn gaps of the ram are filled by the rushing leg from the rear. Officers urge and lead. Such are the orders; such is the duty prescribed; such is human bravery even in these days when life is sweeter to more men in the joys of mind and body than ever before. Prac-cess's their velocity and power of penetration. Where shells made gaps and tore holes in the human mass, the automatic cut with the regularity of the driven teeth of a comb. The men who escaped all the forms of slaughter and staggered on to the ruins of the redoubt, pressed their weight on top of those in the craters or hugged behind the pyramids of debris, and even made breastworks from the bodies of the dead. The more that banked up, the more fruitless the efforts of the officers to restore order in the frantic medley of shell screams and explosions at a time when a minute seemed an age.

Meanwhile, between them—this banked-up force at the charge's end—and the Brown redoubt with its automatics, the Gray gunners were making a zone of shell bursts in order to give the soldiers time to move their hold of the ground they had gained secure. Through this zone Stransky and his men were to lead the Browns in a counter-attack.

At the very height of the Gray charge, when all the reserves were in, dark objects fell out of the heavens, and where they dropped earth and flesh were mingled in the maceration. Like some giant reptile with its vertebrae broken, gouged and torn and pinioned, the charge stopped, in writhing, throbbing confusion. Those on the outer circle of explosions were thrown against their fellows, who surged back in another direction from an explosion in the opposite quarter. From the rear the pressure weakened; the human hammer was no longer driving the ram. Blinded by the lightnings and dust, dizzy from concussions and noise, too blank of mind to be sane or insane, the atoms of the bulk of the charge in natural instinct turned from their goal and toward the place whence they had come, with death from all sides still buffeting them. Staggeringly, at first, they went, for want of initiative in their paralysis; then rapidly as the law of self-preservation asserted itself in wild impulse.

As sheep driven over a precipice they had advanced; as men they fled. There was no longer any command; no longer any cohesion, except of legs struggling in and out over the uneven footing of dead and wounded, while they felt another pressure that of the mass of the Browns in pursuit. Of all those of Fracasse's company whom we know, only the judge's son and Jacob Pilzer were alive. Stained with blood and dust, his teeth showing in a grimace of mocking hate of all humankind, Pilzer's savagery ran free of the restraint of discipline and civilized convention. Striking right and left, he forced his way out of the region of shell fire and still kept on. Clubbing his rifle, he struck down one officer who tried to detain him; but another officer, quicker than he, put a revolver bullet through his head.

Westerling, who had buried his face in his hands in Marta's presence at the thought of failure, must keep the pose of his position before the staff. With chin drawn in and shoulders squared in a sort of petrified military habit, he received the feverish news that grew worse with each brief bulletin. He, the chief of staff; he, Hedworth Westerling, the superman, must be a rock in the flood of alarm. When he heard this, his human ram was in recoil he declared that the repulse had organization, solidarity in this charge such as the days of the "death-or-glory" boys never knew! Over the bodies of Peterkin and the banker's and the banker's sons, plunging through shell craters, stumbling, staggering, cut by swaths and torn by eddies of red destruction in their ranks, the tide proceeded, until its hosts were often treading on flesh than on soil. And all they knew was to keep on—keep on, bayonet in hand, till they reached the redoubt, and there they were to stay, alive or dead.

"Oh, the murder of it—the murder!" he breathed.

"But they brought it on! Not for theirs, but for ours!" said the vice-chief of staff, laying his hand on Lanstron's shoulder.

"And we sit here while they go in!" Lanstron added. "There's a kind of injustice about that which I can't get over. Not one of us here has been under fire!"

He, the chief of staff; he, Hedworth Westerling, the superman, must be a rock in the flood of alarm. When he heard this, his human ram was in recoil he declared that the repulse had been exaggerated—repulses always were. With word that a heavy counter-attack was turning the retreat into an ungovernable rout, he broke into a storm. He was not beaten; he could not be beaten.

"Let our guns cut a few swaths in the mob!" he cried. "That will stop them from running and bring them back to a sense of duty to their country."

The irritating titter of the bell in the closet off the library only increased his defiance of facts beyond control. He went to the long distance with a reply to the premier's inquiry ready to his lips.

"We got into the enemy's works but had to fall back temporarily," he said.

"Temporarily! What do you mean?"

"I mean that we have only begun to attack!" declared Westerling. He liked that sentence. It sounded like the shibboleth of a great leader in a crisis. "I shall assault again to-morrow night."

"Then your losses were not heavy?"

"No, not relatively. To-morrow night we press home the advantage we gained to-night."

"But you have been so confident each time. You still think that—"

"That I mean to win! There is no stopping half-way."

"Well, I'll still try to hold the situation here," replied the premier.

"Keep me informed."

Drugged by his desperate stubbornness, Westerling was believing in his star again when he returned to the library. All the greater his success for being won against skepticism and fears! He summoned his chiefs of divisions, who came with the news that the Browns had taken the very redoubt from which the head of the Gray charge had started; but there they had stopped.

HOLD EVANSVILLE YOUTH FOR TRIAL ON CHARGES

On the conclusion of the testimony offered at the hearing in the case of the state vs. Frank Milbrandi yesterday afternoon District Attorney S. G. Dunwidde moved to hold Milbrandi for trial. This was granted by Municipal Judge H. L. Maxfield and the date set for the case was Nov. 2nd at 10 o'clock.

Attorney Thomas S. Nolan for the defense filed an affidavit for a change of venue in the case from the municipal court.

Human System Injured By One Cup of Coffee

Its Constant Use Tends to Increase Fatigue Products Says Kansas City Physician.

The constant use of coffee and tea tends to increase fatigue products in the human system, says Dr. G. Wilse Robinson, of the University Medical College, Kansas City, Mo.

Caffeine is used in coffee and tea as a beverage for its stimulating effects. Even in small doses, one cup of coffee or tea per day, the general results of the action of caffeine upon the nervous system are to increase the irritability of the brain.

In order to respond to stimulation of regular doses of caffeine, nerve and muscle tissue must draw upon their reserve energy, and they must do their work in the presence of an excessive quantity of toxic fatigue products, and both of these conditions tend to exhaustion and perversion of function.

Caffeine is not a food to nerve or muscle tissue. It does not increase the elimination of fatigue products, but does increase their production.

NOTE.—Too much cannot be said in favor of the value of an invigorating morning drink, especially during colder weather—but the drink must not be harmful. The food-drink, INSTANT POSTUM, while resembling the better grades of Java in flavor and appearance is pure, wholesome and wholly free from the coffee drugs "caffeine" and "tannin" and is rapidly taking the place of coffee as a table beverage for reasons of health.

RAILROADS SEEKING SELF PRESERVATION

Thirty-Eight Leading Lines in United States Appear Before Interstate Commerce Commission.

Urging that business depression and the war in Europe had caused a shrinkage of over $76,000,000 in their annual net revenues, representatives of thirty-eight eastern railroads operating over 39,000 miles of transportation lines appeared before the interstate commerce commission on Monday, asking that they be granted at least a 5 per cent increase in freight rates.

Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and also head of the conference of presidents of the lines involved, was the principal witness. He was supported by a mass of statistics presented by Vice President Shiver of the same, acting for all the roads. Further evidence will be submitted on Tuesday.

In opposition to the plea of the carriers, Clifford Thomas appeared for the public service corporations of several middle western and mountain states and also for shippers' organizations in the region affected.

Louis Brandis, counsel for the commission, assailed Mr. Willard's position in cross-examination particularly, calling attention to the fact that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad had adhered to this year in its policy of declining to grant general dividends, despite an actual deficit of more than $3,000,000 in its net revenues.

Speaking of the effect of the war, Willard pointed out that the immediate and direct result has been stock market disturbance, but declared the ultimate and lasting consequence would be "enormous destruction of wealth and great diversion of labor and capital to unproductive employment" consisting of a race to the world's accumulation of new capital and a serious and prolonged rise in interest rates.

JOHNSTOWN

Johnstown, Oct. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lyke entertained a little baby boy at their home Oct. 11th.

MICHAEL KERIN DIES IN COOKSVILLE VILLAGE

Cooksville, October 19.—Michael Kerin, an old and aged resident of the place, residing half a mile north of this village, died Wednesday morning of pneumonia. He had been ill but two weeks and was thought to be gaining, but suddenly the end came and leaves a wife and three sons and two daughters to mourn his loss. He was over 80 years old and had always been a busy, hard working man. The funeral was held in St. Joseph's church Friday morning, Rev. Harlin from Edgerton officiating.

Mrs. T. J. Van Wormer has been quite ill the past week, but is some better at present.

Miss Ella Morgan spent the last of the week with Mrs. Avis Brown in Center.

Marvin Norby has gone to Sun Prairie to spend a week with friends and see his brother Harry who has secured work there and will stay some time.

The Lutheran Missionary meeting was held Sunday forenoon and afternoon with an intermission for dinner in the basement of the Congregational church.

Six days of continuous rain made the sun a Godsend Sunday morning. Farmers were at a standstill all last week.

The Ladies' Club met with Ella Morgan last Wednesday. Only five were present to eat pumpkin pie.

MARRIED SATURDAY AT HOME WEDDING

Cards Received in City Announce the Marriage of Miss Sweeney to C. B. Foster in Chicago.

Cards have been received in the city, announcing the marriage on Saturday, October 17th, of Miss Blanche Fuller Sweeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fuller Sweeney, who recently married Janesville and now live in Chicago, business man, who holds a responsible position with the Edison Commonwealth Electric company.

The Chicago Tribune announces the marriage in the following article:

The marriage of Miss Blanche Fuller Sweeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fuller Sweeney, formerly of Janesville, Wis., now residing at 1629 North State street to George B. Foster, member of an old Chicago family, was a quiet home ceremony at four o'clock yesterday. The Rev. Norman Hutton of St. Chrysostom's church officiated, and only relatives were present.

The bridal gown was of Venetian lace with veil of the same, and the bouquet was of bride's roses. Frank Bissell was the best man, but the bride had no attendants save her two flower girls, Mary and Katherine Manter. Mr. and Mrs. Foster will live at 4331 Hazel avenue, where they will be at home after January 1.

Milton Junction, Oct. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Dave Arnold are the proud parents of a boy, born Saturday, Oct. 17.

SAVE YOUR HAIR! IF IT IS FALLING OR FULL OF DANDRUFF--25 CENT DANDERINE

Ladies! Men! Here's the quick est, surest dandruff cure known.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; or dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—anytime—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—growing all over the scalp.
